

Last Month we dove straight into our pet study and month about kindness. We went on our first field trip of the year and got to visit the clinic across the street and meet some of the animals that live there. throughout our unit on pets we explored different animals habitats, talked about identifying animals feelings and how to take care and be responsible for our pets. In March, we will be finishing up our study on pets and moving into our study of the environment (Reduce, Reuse, Recycle).

March is jam packed with fun activities as well as some super fun holidays. During the first week of March we will be celebrating Dr. Seuss birthday making some special crafts, trying some Dr. Seuss inspired food and some wacky activities.

We will be using March to work on rule number three in the monkey room, Taking care of our classroom and being RESPONSIBLE. Turning three is a BIG DEAL and with it comes lots of new responsibilities. We will be focusing on self help skills such as putting on our own shoes and coats, learning to zipper, and cleaning up after our messes. We will not only talk about how we are responsible for our words, actions and feelings but also continue to learn, how to identify our emotions and safe ways to express those big feelings we are having. Many of our Spunky Monkeys are welcoming baby brothers and sisters into the world or have already taken on the title of Big Brother and Big Sister, so we will also be talking about the responsibilities and jobs of being the Big Siblings throughout the month.

We have a few Spunky Monkey's joining the 3 club this month:

Anthony 3-21

Brock 3-30

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

The weather always gets a little kooky in March, please make sure to have a variety of clothes for your child in their cubbies. We will continue to go outside as weather permits and sometimes our playground can get a little muddy!

As always any questions, comments or concerns don't hesitate to ask!
